PARTIAL SCHOLARSHIP

Reduction or waiver of part of the tuition fees, sometimes of accommodation.

Your profile determines the scholarship to aim for

PROFILE	STRATEGY	TARGET SCHOLARSHIP

Good	Universities where your profile stands out	Full or partial
Average	Universities where your profile has real chances	Partial
Weak point	Application strengthened before applying	Partial

Our commitment

We only open a file if admission with a scholarship is realistic for your profile. If none of your 3 applications leads to admission with a scholarship, full or partial, the step 2 deposit is refunded.

CALENDAR

Two intakes a year: March and September.

For both intakes, applications are being prepared now.

MARCH INTAKE

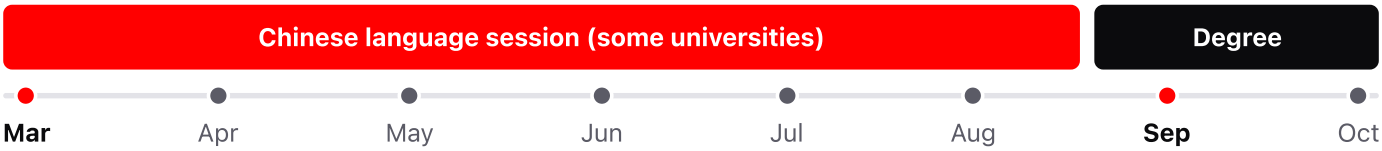

Applications are open now. Places are limited: the earlier the file is submitted, the better.

SEPTEMBER INTAKE

That's now too. Some universities take several months to review applications and organize interviews.

March intake: the language session

At some universities, especially for Bachelor's but also for Master's degrees, the March intake starts with a Chinese language session. You learn Chinese from March to September, then start your degree in September.

Depending on the university or the type of scholarship, this language session is free or paid. We tell you for each university we propose.

YOUR PATH

How a Master scholarship works.

For a strong application, a full scholarship is easier to obtain in a Master's or PhD than in a Bachelor's. Your research project and a supervisor's agreement carry a lot of weight.

1. Admission with a scholarship
   Full or partial, depending on your profile and project
2. Monthly stipend
   Included in some full scholarships
3. Annual scholarships
   Good results can be rewarded every year
4. Springboard to a PhD
   A good Master's paves the way to a doctoral scholarship

Our role: build a solid research project with you and contact the research supervisors whose fields match your profile.
